Dear S,

Spirits Present for the Session:

I am sensing a female energy on my right side. She gives a grandmotherly feel, slightly chubby with blue eyes. She had brown hair at one time although graying as she aged, but never completely. She has a very kind energy. She presents herself to me in a blue dress, ball-like gown. She appreciated fashion and fine things but was not snobbish or one for pretense. She emphasizes the word "appreciated". Her hands are moving as if she is knitting or twirling something in them. She tells me you do the same. She is very happy to be here. She indicates she has been coming to you for quite some time, even as a child. She shows me you chasing a ball and her laughing in delight. She talks to me about the ring with a blue stone and something that was left to be found in the cabinet. I see an antique cabinet, like a corner cabinet or hutch and in the top something belonging to her was found. She also shows me beautiful, antique silverware.

On my left there is a gentleman. He and the female stand directly across from each other although I don't feel as if they've come together. He also has dark hair and shows me himself with a small amount of facial hair. He has a gentle, yet crooked smile. He is tall and lanky. The name of the character "Lurch" comes to my mind. He has a very distinct part in his hair and it is slicked over to the right. He has long fingers. He shows me an image of a young girl sitting on his knee that I sense is you. He also shows me the shape of a heart and tells me he is full of love for you. He mentions the building of houses and shows me a pile of bricks. It feels as if it's been a long time since his departure. He is dressed in blue collar-type of clothing, blue coveralls.

He has a thin gold chain around his neck and shows me what looks like a ship captain's hat. It is white with a ship's wheel on it.

Also on my left is a ball of energy, gold in color. Currently it doesn't appear to me in human form. I hear the words "guiding spirit". I am told this is your Guardian angel.

Client Questions:

1) What area of my life needs the most focus now to help me find clarity of my life path or souls purpose?

The female spirit shows me an image of you sitting in a chair and reading. Piles of books are all around you as if you are soaking in as much information as you can get your hands on. She tells me you should continue this. It is part of your path to understanding who you are. It is how you learn. Experiencing through other people's experiences. At the same time she wants you to know it is ok to have your own experiences. She gives me the feeling of falling and then not being able to get up. I sense that falling down, or failing and not being able to recover is something you fear. She wants you to know that there is no such thing as failure. No decision you make is ever the wrong one. She tells me you will always end up on your path and everything we are given in this lifetime is an opportunity to learn. She shows me an image of you standing in a doorway unsure as to whether or not to take the step through the door. She stands behind you gently nudging you out. Outside of the door stand the gentleman to your right and the angel to your left, supporting you.

She tells me that you get a lot of joy from being outside and in nature. She shows me an image of you digging and planting flowers. You lift your face to the sun, breathing gently, as if this is the one place you feel genuinely relaxed and one with the Universe.

The tone changes and I begin to get a nauseous feeling and some dizziness. She indicates there is a relationship that causes you pain.

This pain is shared with others in the family. This person's energy feels desperate and agonizing, as if there is some struggle or situation they cannot find their way out of. She tells me you are a kind person and want to help but have realized that it is not yours to fix. Still however you carry some guilt and unresolved emotions relating to the situation. There are cords, in your solar plexus, connecting you to this person and at times weighing your energy down. I sense this is where some of your energy resides that you need to pull back. She explains that to continue your focus on your path, you need to clear your space and clear your energy field of these things, which weigh you down. She wants you to remember that you are only responsible for yourself and that by raising your own vibration, you raise the vibration of others.

She mentions the barking of the dog that bothers you. She suggests you use this as a tool to center yourself. When you hear the noise, create a bubble around yourself from the negativity. She tells you to focus on the positive person that you are. Find your core. Don't let your reactions be a driver of your actions.

She and the male now are speaking together. They tell me you are a teacher, a counselor. People come to you for advice and you are a good listener. You allow the freedom for people to express themselves without judgment or retribution. You provide safe haven for those people. This is part of your soul's work.

2) I would love some help from my guides, angels or ancestors on the topic of owning my own brick and mortar shop.

The gentleman steps forward now. He shows me an image of you outside of a red brick building with a black awning. You are contemplating where signage and lettering should go or where to hang items. It's cold and you are in a white sweater/jacket. You are by yourself. He tells me this is your store and indicates this path will be one without much physical support from others. Although people will support your efforts emotionally, the work itself, the physical work, will be yours to do. The work you do will bring you joy but he tells me you experience some disappointment because you do not see the same joy materialize quickly in others, in large numbers of clientele. I see you content with the work, yet struggling to make it successful. He is showing me a timeline, with marks for 12-15 months. I sense this is the amount of time it would take for the business to turn a profit although he tells me this path will not be one that leads to significant financial success.

When I ask him what other paths you can take, he shows me a big cauldron and you stirring and stirring. He tells me there are other “magic spells” which can get you what you want. You can create the perfect solution for you. He gives me the indication that there is a hybrid or happy medium between the brick and mortar shop and some other avenue of sales for your products or services. He shows me a rent and white lettered “For rent” sign for a second floor space of a building. He explains the space is smaller and serves dual purpose. The image I see is of an L-shaped, wooden table/desk and hard wood floors with a small green lamp, but this is just in one corner of a room. The rest of the room is used for another purpose. I see you sitting there in the dusk hours working on something with your hands. It seems to be a craft of some sort. He shows me you leaving the space and walking down the street whistling. You are happy and feel solid in your decision. This path brings less stress and more financial reward.

3) I am constantly receiving signs, symbols to my own life questions. I assign some meaning to them, but I would love to have clarify as to their meaning and who they might specifically be coming from.

Your Guardian Angel steps forward now. She tells me she comes in the form of rainbows and birds. She shows me a bird feeder and birdbath with several birds whistling and singing. I am hearing a very high-pitched sound that she indicates is her attempt to connect with you through clairaudience. I heard it for a brief second only and she explains that because of the short duration, you question if you actually heard it. Do not doubt it. When you hear that sound, it is her contacting you. Again she shows me birds. I am watching red birds, cardinals, at a feeder. There is one that is looking me directly in the eye. It is a stare that feels very familiar, as if I have known this bird for a lifetime. She explains that she is not just sending you birds as signs, but takes the form of birds herself to be with you in the physical world. She comes to you and sends these signs to remind you that you are always surrounded by love and support. She wants you to remember that you are always divinely guided.

This vision has changed and I am now looking at a silver bracelet on my right wrist. It is turning around and around by itself. She shows me putting the bracelet on in the morning with one image facing upwards but then by the end of the morning, it has turned so that the image is facing downward. I question this because it doesn't seem strange since bracelets do that when you wear them. She smiles and tightens it on my arm and tells me it fits snugly and couldn't rotate on its own. She is turning it during the day; also a sign to remind that you are never alone.

The three Spirits now come together to talk about the trees and the wind that blows the leaves. They are showing me trees waving at me as if they are welcoming me. They are now telling me they send you numbers. The numbers are sent to relieve your doubt. They show me numbers on a license plate and also those on a black-faced digital clock with red letters. And then they show me an image of your face and recognition of significant numbers. You look at the license plate or clock and smile and sigh as if you are relieved to know they are still with you.

They talk now about your use of the pendulum with a crystal. They speak to you through this pendulum but they want you to know you don't need it. The answers are within you already and although they are happy to continue to speak with you through this tool, your inner knowing is sufficient. You don't need all of the signs and symbols that you look for and they provide. They want you to focus on your inner knowing; your belief in yourself. Trust in your Higher Self and in Source, remembering that you are Source energy. Within in you lies everything you need.

Thank you, S. I hope you enjoyed the reading. It was a pleasure to be able to connect with your Spirit Team.
